

The Altman Z-Score is a financial tool measuring the financial health of a company by looking at multiple corporate income and balance sheet values, the formula is used to predict the probability that a firm will go to bankruptcy. The Altman Z-Score of all listed companies is openly available to the public.